Programs Offered

The Languages and Liberal Arts Unit offers an undergraduate program leading to a Bachelor of Arts (BA) degree in English Language and two minors: one in English Language and Literature and one in Psychology. It also offers all RHU students the Intensive Language Program and core education courses. The details of each program will follow.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROGRAM

Learning Objectives

The main goal of the Bachelor of Arts in English Language Program is to prepare interested students in the English major to become 21st-century competent English Language graduates by providing them with the essential linguistic, literary, fiction/non-fiction writing, and intercultural backgrounds needed to pursue careers and graduate work in their field. Following the latest teaching methods, the BA English Language Program helps students deepen their knowledge in the field, develop critical thinking, and learn to work collaboratively. It also equips students with strong research, literacy, and critical-thinking skills to meet the needs of 21st-century English-language graduates.

Learning Outcomes

After completing all the required courses in the English Language program, students should be able to:

1. Identify different subfields in linguistics;
2. Use linguistic and literary terminology in the analysis of literary texts;
3. Differentiate between different theories in linguistics;
4. Analyze and critique different literary texts;
5. Communicate competently in English with speakers from diverse cultures;
6. Synthesize information obtained from different texts;
7. Conduct research related to the English language;
8. Take up a profession in the English language.

Career Opportunities

English Language graduates find fulfilling careers in various public and private professions, such as schools, translation firms, publishing houses, tourism-industry public relations firms, voluntary and charitable organizations, and media organizations, to name a few. English Language graduates may become English teachers, editors, journalists, public relations practitioners, writers, translators, and many other professionals where skill in using language is essential. Many also pursue graduate studies in fields such as linguistics, education, literature, and communication.

Program Overview

The Bachelor of Arts in English Language Program aims to provide students with a theoretical and practical understanding of the many functions of English, including its structure, use, and learning. This program also equips students with linguistic foundations and a general background in literature and fiction/non-fiction writing.

Through effective teaching, students develop their own critical and analytical thinking. Finally, this program prepares students to either pursue graduate studies or take up a profession in language-related fields.

To obtain a Bachelor of Arts degree in English Language, the student must complete 93 credit hours. These hours cover University requirements (UR), College requirements (CR), and Program requirements (PR). The allocation of the credit hours is shown in the following table:

Courses Description

Mandatory Courses

Major Courses

Descriptions of the major mandatory courses are given below.

ENGL 210	English Composition and Rhetoric	3(3,0)
This course reviews the fundamentals of good academic writing in English, teaches essay writing essentials and research skills in two rhetorical modes (persuasion and argumentation), and provides practice in writing essays in these modes, research papers, and oral presentations. Prerequisite: ENGL 101 or TOEFL 550+ (paper) or 80+ (computer).

ENGL 217	Professional English Communication	3(3,0)
This course is designed to help students develop effective professional communication skills, both orally and in writing. In this course, students learn how to write emails, memos, letters, proposals, reports, and other forms of employment correspondence. In addition, this course helps students sharpen their presentation skills. Broadly, this course enables students to behave professionally and effectively in their prospective jobs. Prerequisite: ENGL 210.

ENGL 222	Introduction to Language	3(3,0)
This course examines current theoretical and applied areas of linguistics, including the different levels of structure, the nature of language acquisition, language variation and evolution, and language teaching.

ENGL 342	Introduction to Shakespeare	3(3,0)
A course in which students study Shakespeare's representative comedies, histories, and tragedies. The plays are read intensively and understood in the context of the period's theatrical conventions, the culture of play in early modern England, and the period's social, cultural, religious, and intellectual history. Prerequisite: ENGL 210

ENGL 250	Introduction to English Literature I	3(3,0)
This course covers English literature from Anglo-Saxon times to the late eighteenth century. Specific texts by the principal writers of these periods will be examined against the social, historical, and philosophical background of their periods.

ENGL 251	Introduction to English Literature II	3(3,0)
This course continues the survey of English literature, which began in Introduction to Literature I, moving from Blake to Eliot, through examining specific texts by major authors against the period's social, historical, and philosophical background. Prerequisite ENGL 250

ENGL 350	History of the English Language	3(3,0)
This is an introductory survey of the history of the English language from its earliest Indo-European origins to the present day. The nature and changes of the language are presented by reviewing the shifts from Indo-European, Germanic, Old English, Middle English, and Early Modern English. Prerequisite: ENGL 222 or consent of the instructor.

ENGL 360	Introduction to Phonetics	3(3,0)
This is a course in which students study the articulatory, auditory, and acoustic descriptions of English sounds. This course also includes descriptions of the sounds of other languages. The practical component of this course involves practice in the transcription and production of English sounds. Prerequisite: ENGL 222

ENGL 370	Modern English Grammar	3(3,0)
This course teaches grammar through exploration and analysis. It provides a more detailed study of word and phrase formation, pragmatics, and a critical analysis of descriptive uses of grammar. Prerequisite: ENGL 210

ENGL 400	Advanced English Grammar	3(3,0)
An advanced course in English grammar that equips students to analyze the differences among major English grammars. Traditional, descriptive, and transformational grammar are examined. Prerequisite: ENGL 370

ENGL 450	Advanced Academic Writing	3(3,0)
This course allows students to further their academic writing skills through advanced independent research, writing, and discussion of various academic topics. Students will receive rigorous research training, critiquing and analyzing texts and resources, synthesis, and composition. This required course helps students to pursue graduate studies. Prerequisite: ENGL 210

ENGL 465	Senior Project	3(3,0)
In this course, students must conduct a group research study on English language learning or teaching. Prerequisite: Senior standing.

Non-Major Courses

ARAB 212	Arabic Language and Communication	2(2,0)
This course helps students develop their ability to communicate effectively in standard Arabic. It provides students with the necessary Arabic communication skills they may need in their future jobs. Specifically, students learn how to write and orally present different forms of workplace documents in Arabic.

CMNS 200	Etiquette	1(1,0)
This course is designed to help students develop interpersonal and communication skills that are fundamental to success in the workplace, no matter what industry, organization, or sector they are employed in. Students will improve their professional style as they study topics including polite conversation, personal appearance, office politics, diplomacy, telephone, cell phone, and voicemail etiquette, meeting protocol, job interview presentations, and even international travel. Students will participate in an off-campus formal dining experience. Co-requisite: ENGL 210.

EDUC 222	Computer Applications in Education	3(3,0)
This course focuses on general knowledge of the use of microcomputers in education, including common computer applications such as word processing, spreadsheet, database, and presentation software in teaching/learning activities, as well as evaluating the effectiveness of educational software in teaching/learning across various subject matter areas.

MATH 220	Statistics for Social & Behavioral Sciences	3(3,0)
This course introduces statistical techniques for analyzing social science research data. Topics include frequency distribution, central tendency, variability, probability theory, Bayes' rule, mathematical expectation, variance and covariance, binomial, Poisson, hypergeometric and normal distributions, sampling distributions, estimation problems, and hypothesis testing. Prerequisite: None.

PSYC 301	Introduction to Psychology	3(3,0)
This course introduces the theories, concepts, and viewpoints of the discipline of psychology. The course is designed to help students understand human behavior by addressing topics including the history of psychology, learning, personality, motivation, perception, social psychology, mental health, and related areas. Co-requisite: ENGL 210.

Major Elective Courses

Descriptions of some major elective courses are given below.

ENGL 223	Introduction to Drama	3(3,0)
In this course, you will explore what drama is, its basic elements, and the evolution of its dramatic structure over centuries. You will study selected, representative plays from different periods to broaden your understanding and appreciation of literature. The course also aims to develop your critical thinking and analysis, and encourages you to respond critically to dramatic works through well-developed oral and written criticism.

ENGL 235	Creative Writing	3(3,0)
This course introduces students to the process and practice of imaginative writing. Students will read works of fiction, creative nonfiction, and poetry and learn writing techniques in those genres.

ENGL 252	Introduction to American Literature	3(3,0)
This course explores the works of major literary figures and authors representing different literary schools from the sixteenth century to modern times. Students will closely examine selected texts as literary achievements and situate them within the historical context and framework of American culture. Co-requisite: ENGL 210.

ENGL 300	Introduction to World Literature	3(3,0)
The course surveys selected works in English or in translation from non-Anglo-American cultural traditions. Texts can be drawn from African, Asian, European, Latin American, and Middle Eastern literature, with a focus on their historical and cultural contexts. Prerequisite: ENGL 210.

ENGL 330	Language Acquisition	3(3,0)
This course will survey theories of language acquisition. It will address human language processing, learners' motivational factors, and contextual factors that influence language learning. It will uncover the principles of first- and second-language acquisition.

ENGL 365	Applied Linguistics	3(3,0)
This course is intended to give a broad overview of Applied Linguistics. It introduces learners to key areas that deepen their understanding of how language works across personal, social, and professional environments. The course touches on practical issues such as the relationships among languages, cultures, and societies; the acquisition of second and foreign languages; and the teaching and learning of languages.

ENGL 420	Literature and Culture	3(3,0)
This course considers major works of literature, specifically in the context of twentieth-century cultural theory, including Marxism, post-colonialism, national literature, ethnic writings, and feminist theory. The primary intention of this course is to explore how various texts interact with their societies or how those societies influence the construction of literary works.

ENGL 430	Advanced Language Acquisition	3(3,0)
An in-depth exploration of current issues in language acquisition in relation to recent developments in linguistic theories. Diverse topics in language acquisition, such as children's acquisition of pragmatics, school-aged acquisition, bilingualism, and foreign language acquisition, will be discussed. Prerequisite: ENGL 365.

ENGL 460	Discourse Analysis	3(3,0)
This course considers several approaches to analyzing written, spoken, and signed language use in social science disciplines, including linguistics, sociology, anthropology, social work, psychology, and others. Students will learn discourse analysis methods, including how to work with various data. They will also consider various schools of thought that have evolved in discourse analysis.

ENGL 462	Introduction to Psycholinguistics	3(3,0)
This course addresses the psychological and neurobiological aspects of language acquisition and how they influence humans' ability to learn, use, and understand language. It also considers the relationship between language and thought.
